

Dear Parents,

06.07.2026

sometimes a young person needs an additional trusted person alongside their family—someone who listens, offers encouragement, and provides guidance. This is the purpose of our volunteer mentoring program.

- You remain your child's most important caregivers and role models.
- A mentor does not replace a mother or a father.
- Mentoring provides additional support, encouragement, and guidance.
- A trusting relationship with a mentor can strengthen your child without diminishing your role as parents.

Our guiding principle is: "You may care about your mentor - and your parents will always remain your parents."

Working Together

Successful mentoring works best as a partnership. That is why openness, transparency, and respectful communication with you are especially important to us. Your questions, thoughts, and suggestions are always welcome.

Together, we want to help your child develop confidence, experience security, and build a positive outlook for their future.
